Fields fatters

It was a long night's journey

By Andy Slering
Staff writer

For candidates and their supporters, election night is one long trial by fire as they waver between optimism and despair.

Marlene Miller, treasurer of the Friends of Pete Fields, took a half-hour nap early Tuesday evening to fortify her for what she expected would be a long night.

It was 9:15 p.m. at the Fields campaign headquarters at St. Gregory Armenian Community Center on West Pontoon Road, and the accepted wisdom was that the race would not be decided until well after midnight.

"It's just such a long wait," said Betsy Hooks, a sister of Fields, at 9:50. "You can't count on anything, but with the heavy Madison County turnout, you have to be optimistic."

Tori Harrison, a Fields campaign worker, was even more upbeat. "We're very confident Pete's going to win," she said. The Fields campaign was getting thumped in early returns from St. Clair County, but approximately 100 Fields supporters were making brave noises as they waited for the Madison County results to come in. Fields is a native of Venice.

They sat on folding chairs at lunch tables, or wandered over to get a beer, a soda, cold cuts or coffee. The scene was similar at the Moose Lodge in Wood River, Madison County headquarters of the Jerry Costello campaign.

Neither of the congressional candidates was present, and at both places the candidate's estimated time of arrival was a constant source of conversation. "Ten o'clock," somebody said at St. Gregory's. "Pete should be here in about a half-hour," announced Art Asadorian at 10:25, to scattered applause.

Asadorian had his own race to worry about: Democratic committeeman in Granite City's 35th Precinct, but five minutes later he learned he had won the four-way race. He kissed the ladies and shook hands with the men. Had he ever run for office before? "I ran from the teacher in school," he said, smiling.

"How come she got a kiss and I didn't?" complained one woman. Asadorian leaned across the table and kissed her. Political rookie though he is, the man clearly has good instincts.

A teenage boy put some voting percentages on a portable standing chalkboard. They added up to 114 percent.

Like Asadorian, many at the community center had their own races to fret over. Some were old political rivals who had put aside their differences to try and nominate Fields. "A lot of these people would be at each other's throats if this were a city election," said Bob Meszaros of Granite City.

Pete Fields arrived at 11:23. (See FIELDS, Page 10A)

Stephens says recall election bill 'popular'

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The sponsor of a recall election bill before the Illinois House of Representatives said he expects popular support "to force the bill along" despite stiff opposition he said is certain to come.

"It's a mom and apple pie issue on the streets," 110th District State Rep. Ron Stephens, Collinsville, said. "Once people realize they have no recall rights, of course it will get support."

The bill, an amendment to the state election code, applies to elected officeholders at every level of government throughout the state.

Recalling an official under the proposed procedure would require a petition signed by 10 percent of the voters registered in the governmental unit. This would be presented to the appropriate election authority for verification.

If petitions were valid, an election would be scheduled for not less than 40 nor more than 90 days away. If a majority vote approved recall, the office would be considered vacant. It could be filled by using the current method of filling vacancies in that office.

The bill lists no requirements concerning the type, or number, of reasons for recall, although it requires reasons to be listed on the petition.

"Circumstances a couple of years ago caused me to look into recall procedures," Stephens said. "I just assumed there was a procedure. I was amazed to

The winners DEMOCRATS

Paul Simon

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, whose presidential primary bid seemed to be faltering in his home state in the waning moments, came back with a convincing victory over fellow Illinoisan, Jessie Jackson, who finished second with 4,855 votes. Simon had 23,785. Massachusetts Gov. Mike Dukakis finished third with 4,314.

Jerry Costello

St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello won the right to represent the party in the 21st Congressional District race. Madison County Auditor Pete Fields, Glen Carbon, finished second ahead of Mike Mansfield. Costello will face the Republican, Bob Gaffner, Nov. 8.

Bill Haine

The public responded to Bill Haine's promises of no plea bargaining in serious cases and to seek the death penalty for particularly heinous murders; he won easily. Unofficially, he had 23,461 votes to 14,096 for incumbent Dick Allen. Haine faces Don Weber, a Republican, in the Nov. 8 general election.

Dan Donohoo

In a three-way race against incumbent Rink Lucas and Collinsville Township Supervisor Terry Allen, County Board member Daniel Donohoo is the party's choice for recorder of deeds. Donohoo had 15,250 votes to 11,179 for Lucas and 8,655 for Allen. Donohoo faces Homer Henke, a Republican, Nov. 8.

Fred Bathon

Backed by the Madison County Democratic Party Central Committee, and with experience as deputy auditor, Fred Bathon, Madison, easily won the auditor race, taking 17,837 votes to 9,293 for H. Jack Frandsen and 5,624 for Michael R. Myler. Bathon faces Mark Thomas McDowell, a Republican, in the election Nov. 8.

Dallas Burke

Coroner Dallas Burke, Alton, facing her first primary opposition since 1972, held off challenger Bob Thomas, Granite City. Thomas raised serious issues, but Democrats stuck with Burke. Burke received 23,538 votes to 14,413 for Thomas. No Republican filed in the coroner race.

Democratic Party's victory bittersweet for central committee chairman, Warfield

GRANITE CITY — Tuesday's election proved bittersweet for Mac Warfield, Madison County Democratic Party Central Committee chairman.

In 1986, two of the three candidates who received the committee's endorsement were defeated, but this time it was a clean sweep for the Warfield-led committee. The joy of winning was mixed with disappointment for Warfield, however — he lost his 2nd Precinct seat and within 15 days the committee has to replace him.

"I'm really glad about the ticket we put together," Warfield said Wednesday. "I think I got beat because (the committee) endorsed some people here didn't like, but I did what was right."

Among those the committee did not endorse was State's Attorney Dick Allen, Granite City, who lost his bid to repeat as the party's choice for state's attorney to County Board member Bill Haine, Alton. Like Warfield, Allen also lost a precinct committeeman seat.

Warfield said he does not know who will replace him as party chairman, and he said he has not yet determined his personal favorite, but he mentioned Edwardsville Township Supervisor Bob Stille and County Board member Dan Donohoo as possible successors. Donohoo is the party's choice for recorder of deeds in the Nov. 8 election.

Though bowing from the committee's chairmanship, Warfield remains in politics as Granite City's elected superintendent of streets. Asked about his plans for 1989, Warfield was indefinite but confirmed, "I love politics. That's my life."

Other notables who lost election bids in precinct races were: Madison — former Mayor Mike Sasyk and County Board member Don Garrett. Granite City — former 7th Ward Alderman Mike Modrusic, 6th Ward Alderwoman Sharon Perjak and former 5th Ward Alderwoman Margaret Nonn.

An agent guards suspects following Brooklyn raid

Police raid in Brooklyn

BROOKLYN — An alleged drug selling operation was visited Wednesday afternoon by agents from the Federal Drug Enforcement Agency, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Illinois State Highway Patrol.

The agents simultaneously raided three Brooklyn addresses in the DEA-controlled operation that began at approximately 2 p.m. and ended a little more than an hour later.

The operation was centered on a trailer protected by a chain-link fence, guard dogs, a closed circuit TV camera, two-way mirrors and barred windows and doors.

The trailer featured a "walk-up" service window in the rear that could be entered from the alley. The narrow entryway was under surveillance by a television camera mounted at a top end corner. A DEA spokesman at the scene said it appeared that a person who wanted to buy drugs could enter, ring a bell and, while being observed through a two-way mirror, conduct a transaction through a slot in the wall.

The back-door window also featured a sign listing what appeared to be business hours.

In the course of their arrests, the agents shot and killed a Doberman pincher.

Students collecting pennies for wildlife

Prather School students in Dot Bailey's fourth-grade class will continue to help the Treehouse Wildlife Center in Brighton this year.

The students are collecting pennies each day, and at the end of the month the pennies are counted and a check in that amount is sent to the center, which provides care and refuge for wild animals that have been wounded or injured.

A field trip to the center is scheduled for later this year. The project is part of the class's year-long participation in the Kid's Care citizenship contest sponsored by Scholastic Book Services. The contest is designed to motivate students to participate in projects that help others and to teach them basic concepts of citizenship.

Medical Society says schools should accept AIDS children

CHICAGO — While the District 9 Board of Education continues to review what to do about its one known student with the AIDS virus, the Illinois State Medical Society has made a recommendation for the state's school districts — children infected with AIDS virus should be in school.

The Illinois State Medical Society (ISMS), an organization representing 17,000 physicians statewide, went on to recommend that doctors not discriminate against AIDS patients. The ISMS suggests that doctors give competent and humane treatment to all patients, including those with conditions such as AIDS or AIDS-related complex (ARC).

Jason Robertson, 7, has ARC, said his mother, Tammy Robertson.

The state medical society outlined these and other positions in an AIDS policy package released recently. The policies serve as guidelines and recommendations to all Illinois doctors and public health officials.

A child infected with the AIDS virus, AIDS itself or ARC does not pose a recognized health threat to other students in a classroom, the society states.

However, a physician should determine if a child with AIDS or ARC could be endangered by other, more contagious infections present in the classroom — since AIDS diminishes the victim's ability to fight other infections, the ISMS said.

Physicians also should evaluate each case carefully to assure that the infected child's behavior (such as biting or other violent actions) does not pose additional risks, the society said, adding:

The privacy of the child should be protected by allowing only appropriate school officials to know his or her identity.

Other policies adopted by ISMS address:

HIV ANTIBODY TESTING (GENERAL): Mass AIDS testing among specific segments of society is not medically warranted because the spread of AIDS is not limited to certain segments of society, but affects anyone who participates in high-risk behaviors (such as homosexuality and intravenous drug use).

TESTING OF PRISONERS: ISMS does not support mandatory testing of prison inmates because it says the testing will not stop the spread of AIDS and, therefore, is not in the best interests of the individual and the public health. Voluntary, confidential and anonymous AIDS testing and counseling must be available for prison inmates, the ISMS recommends.

TESTING OF HOSPITAL PATIENTS: ISMS opposes mandatory testing of hospital patients since most would be discharged before test results are back. Also, a false positive could cause unnecessary fear in the hospital staff and stigmatization of the patient.

Rather, hospital personnel should treat all patients as though they have the AIDS virus, taking necessary precautions to prevent its spread.

Jason Robertson

PRE-MARITAL TESTING: Testing all marriage-bound couples for the AIDS antibody has limited value as a means for controlling the spread of AIDS. Physicians must, by law, counsel marriage license applicants on AIDS and transmission of the virus.

The state Department of Public Health is urged to continue providing materials on AIDS to doctors and couples seeking a marriage license.

ISMS is working with public health officials to educate physicians and patients about the meaning of a negative or positive AIDS test.

CONFIRMING TEST RESULTS: Physicians should inform marriage license applicants who have taken an AIDS virus test of a positive test result only after it has been confirmed by a Western blot or other confirmatory test.

They should inform the patient of negative ELISA tests (no confirmatory test required), but not of positive ELISA tests. ELISA tests are not as accurate as the confirmatory tests, and false positive results could cause the patient unnecessary concern and social harm, the ISMS says.

BLOOD DONATIONS: Doctors should educate their patients that donating blood does not expose the donor to the risk of AIDS.

"Designated blood donations" (blood donated for a specific recipient) are not supported. They have not been shown to be any safer than volunteer blood donations, and they tie up blood supplies.

Any individual with high-risk behavior (such as homosexuality or intravenous drug use) should voluntarily refrain from donating blood, the ISMS says.

CONFIDENTIALITY: The privacy of patients infected with the AIDS virus should be protected. A physician may disclose a patient's AIDS infection status to other doctors and health care workers involved in the treatment of the patient makes it necessary for them to know.

Those doctors and health care workers must responsibly keep that information confidential, in accordance with state law.

QUARANTINE: Except when it is in the best interests of public health to isolate or quarantine an AIDS victim, ISMS does not support general quarantine of infected persons because it is not necessary or effective in controlling the spread of AIDS.

COUNSELING PATIENTS: Doctors should make it a regular practice to take sexual and lifestyle histories of patients and to take the responsibility to educate high-risk patients about AIDS and any high-risk behaviors that should be modified to avoid an AIDS infection.

Counseling is being called the single most important component of the new pre-marital testing law.

AIDS EDUCATION: ISMS will keep physicians abreast of AIDS information and resources so doctors can educate themselves and others. The training of hospital and other medical staffs in ways to prevent the spread of the AIDS virus is encouraged, both to protect them and to allay their fears of contracting the infection.

The ISMS encourages physicians to educate their patients and communities about AIDS.

The Society supports preventive education programs for all segments of society, including teaching about AIDS within the school curriculum according to community standards. Public school employees should be trained in basic infection control and handling of blood or bodily fluids.

PHYSICIANS WITH AIDS: Doctors with AIDS should still be allowed to practice as long as they meet the state's medical guidelines and are followed and patients are not endangered. Disclosure of AIDS infection status of a physician to a patient is an integral part of the physician-patient relationship, and should be understood at that level, the ISMS says.

Letters, please, send him some letters

By Andy Sltering
Staff writer

Greetings, Quad Cities!
That's my name up there. I'm a newcomer to town and I have a favor to ask. But first I want to tell you a story.
When I told a fellow St. Louisan about my new job as lifestyle editor, his response was typical of many St. Louisans' attitudes. You've probably heard something like it before.
"Lifestyles," he said, looking doubtful. "I don't think there are lifestyles over there. People just sort of exist, don't they?"
Stop that. I can hear you swearing.
I wouldn't worry about that guy. "Lifestyles" sounds synthetic, anyway — something you put on like a new suit. It's a California sort of word. Californians lead the nation in lifestyles, and look at them.
Anyway, as I said, I know very little about the Quad Cities. I do have some vague, but nice, memories from the '50s of family excursions on Sunday afternoons to Jacobsmeyer's Tavern on Edwards Street in Granite City.
I remember two things about

Andy Sltering
Joins newspaper

that old tavern: How good the chili was and how friendly the people seemed. Those aren't bad things to be remembered for — whether you're talking about a tavern or a town.
Still, I'm sure there's a lot more to the Quad Cities than good chili and friendly people. And that's where the favor comes in.
If I'm going to write about the area, I need to learn about it. That's where you come in. You are my subject matter. I want you to be my teachers too.

I want you to send me anecdotes and trivia about life in the Quad Cities. Just about anything is suitable. What are your thoughts about the Quad Cities — its past, present and future? What was it like when you were growing up here? You young people — what is it like growing up here now? What do you do for recreation? Are there ordinary people doing extraordinary things here? Are there people who give of themselves to help others and who deserve recognition for it?
Are you out there, Quad Cities? Are you listening? Come on back and give me an earful. I need something to shut up that wiseguy buddy of mine.
I used to work at the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. For years, the Globe carried a feature called Ask Andy (not me). Since you're going to be telling me things (I hope!), address letters to Tell Andy: Granite City Press-Record/Journal, 1815 Delmar Ave., Granite City, Ill. 62040.

Guggina covers school beat for newspaper

Allow me to introduce myself. My name is Paul Guggina (that's goo-JEE-na), and I'm the Press-Record/Journal's education reporter.

I'll be covering the school boards in Granite City, Madison and Venice, as well as handling any other news or feature stories relating to education or the schools.

I'm a stranger to Illinois. In fact, midwestern America in general is still slightly strange to me as perhaps I am to it. A displaced Bostonian, I've only been in the St. Louis area for about a year.

I was brought up in Watertown, Mass., a community similar in size to Granite City. Watertown is a great place, and to me it will always be home, but the plain truth is I couldn't afford to live there and survive on my own.

So after college-hopping in such exotic places as Pittsburgh and Barnstable, Mass., as well as Boston, I found myself on the outskirts of St. Louis, working as a freelance reporter for both the West County Journals and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Charles Bureau.

My original intention of moving

Paul Guggina
Joins news staff to Missouri was to finish up school at Mizzou, which I understood had an excellent journalism program. But after living in St. Louis for a few months, I decided I didn't want to leave it and I also couldn't afford to go to Mizzou. Rents are low (compared to Boston), the climate's steady (compared to Boston) and the people are some of the nicest I've ever met, especially compared to Boston.

So I passed on Mizzou, and enrolled instead at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. In January, I packed my belongings into my rusted-out car, crossed the border and took up residence in Maryville. I sold articles to the Collinsville and Edwardsville Journals to survive. When I saw the opportunity for steady work at the Press-Record/Journal, I went for it, and the editor, being desperate, hired me.

Besides selling my soul to the Journals and the Post during the past year, I've been a reporter for several college publications, and was a full-time reporter for a daily newspaper in Boston for a nearly a year before heading to St. Louis.

I hope to stay here a while. I feel fortunate to have this job, as the editor constantly reminds me, and I'm honored to work for a first-rate publication like the Press-Record/Journal.

Thanks for having me, Granite City. It's good to be here. I'll do the best I can to offer you clear, accurate and unbiased news reports about your schools.

Schools to close with bishop's permission

Pastors at Granite City's four Roman Catholic churches are proceeding with a plan to close two of the churches and the Sacred Heart-St. Joseph School, the Rev. William Fisherkeller said Thursday.

Bishop Daniel Ryan is expected to give final approval to the plan this week, Fisherkeller said. Representatives of the city's four parishes have formed a special task force and are holding weekly meetings to discuss the plan, which can only be implemented with the bishop's permission. Fisherkeller said he is "90 percent sure" Ryan will approve the plan.

Under the plan, which was developed by the pastors and the Rev. Virgil Mant of the Alton Deamery, St. Margaret's Mary and St. Joseph churches would be closed, and parishioners would be divided between the two remaining churches, St. Elizabeth and Sacred Heart.

Venice board dismisses teachers as precaution

VENICE — The Board of Education will send honorable discharge notices to 20 teachers this week as a safeguard against possible funding cuts.
A letter to the teachers signed by Board President Wilbert Glasper states that the measure is necessary "because of the uncertainty of continued federal and/or state funding."

If the district receives the funding it is expecting, all of the teachers would be rehired, Superintendent Charles McCaskill said.

Malachi 3:10 "Prove me now..."

This is a marvelous challenge from God to his people. Prove me, O Lord, He wants the chance to let you see that He is not a myth. What you will have to do is communicate directly with Him. This means you will bypass all the systems of organized religion and many of the misconceptions that we find there. After you prove Him, then you can find a place to serve Him.
The emphasis on proving God is made more urgent by the statement, "prove me now." Do not delay another day. Start at once to read the Bible, God's Word. Pray and ask God to reveal himself through the Word. Be prepared to hear from Heaven. When you seek God with all your heart, you will find Him. Prove Him. Today.

March 20 - 26 will mark Poison Prevention Week

Members of the Metro-East Pharmacists Association will offer information and syrup of ipecac free as part of National Poison Prevention Week March 20-26.

Theme of this year's effort is "Children act fast ... so do poisons."

In an educational effort, participating pharmacies will offer charts on first-aid antidotes and safety guidelines, poison prevention tips and a bottle of syrup of ipecac, a treatment for poisonings.

To receive the free bottle, residents must present a coupon appearing in the March 16 Journal to a participating pharmacist during Poison Prevention Week. Pharmacists caution that syrup of ipecac is only to be used with medical advice.

A spokesman for the association said the Child Resistant

Packaging Act has dramatically reduced the incidence of child poisonings, though childhood poisonings continue to pose a major health threat. Nationwide, hospital emergency rooms still treat about 100,000 children each year for ingesting poison products.

Medicines, plants and household cleaning products, coupled with "carelessness," lead the list of child poisoning culprits.

The association urges adults to contact a local pharmacist for information or questions pertaining to poison prevention.

Area pharmacists participating in this program are:

Reese Drug Store, 3216 Nameoki Road, Reese Drug Store, 304 Madison Ave., Madison, Reese Medical Arts Pharmacy, 2120 Madison Ave., and Schnucks Pharmacy, 3401 Nameoki Road.

'Operation Snowflake' set for Saturday

MADISON — The second annual Make the M.O.S.T. of Your Life/Operation Snowflake will take place at Madison Middle School from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, March 19.

Students from the Middle School and St. Mark's are invited to attend the all-day drug prevention program, which will include speakers on such topics as drugs, peer pressure and parent/child communication.

Activities are planned to help students feel good about themselves and to encourage positive decision-making. Free T-shirts, lunch and snacks will be available to students.

Snowflake is being planned in cooperation with Plaza Health Care. Coordinated by Kathleen Guinan and Sue Borstein, the program is supported by a Chapter II migrant and contributions from Madison businesses and service organizations.

Jobs Daughters discuss activities

Bethel 43 of the International Order of Jobs Daughters held its regular meeting Feb. 9.

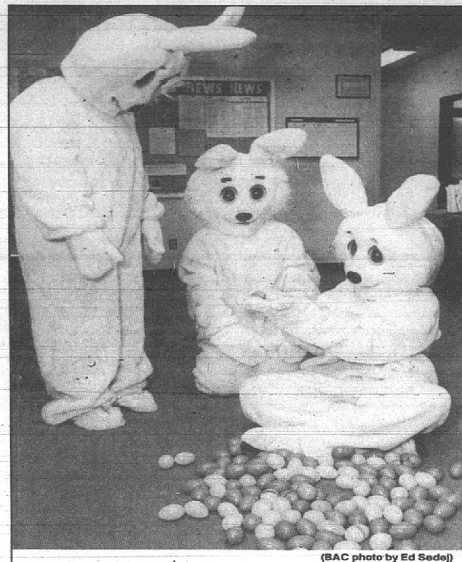

Honored Queen Vickie Becker presided, under the direction of Bethel guardian Kathleen Off and associate Bethel guardian Dale O'Beir.

Members discussed their planned activities, including a trip to St. Louis Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden; a luncheon for the Mason's Grand Lodge School of Instruction; and Eastern Star 650's chicken dinner, at which members were to assist.

Plans were discussed for a Past Honored Queen's and Majority Night and an initiation to be held March 8.

Members also prepared for a ritual competition in Springfield on March 5, and for the annual visit of the grand guardian and associate grand guardian on March 29.

Plans were made to attend the grand session in Decatur, Ill., on April 21-24. The group will host a Job's Daughters School of Instruction on May 7.

Summerstage to perform new rendition of play

For this year's children's show, Summerstage is announcing a premiere production of a play revision written by a local woman.

Ann Scott, a member of Summerstage, has written a new version of "Beauty and the Beast," based on the familiar fairy tale of that name. Scott is also directing the play.

Original music has been composed by Dan Vizer, also a local resident.

Scott, a daughter of the late Russell D. Johnson, longtime educator, high school principal, and superintendent of schools in Granite City, has taught at Maryville School for the past 20 years. She has a history of community involvement.

Active in community theater for many years both here and in Cheyenne, Wyo., she is also a chapter member and past president of Friends of the Library and a member of the Downtown Restoration Society.

The cast includes Pam Harbison in the little role of Beauty, Garry Pregler as the Beast, Diane Wingerter as Cynida, Anne Marie Connolly as Arsenic, Jim Fensterman as Mr. Merchant, Jerry Tracy as Mandi All Selim, and Rob Orabod as Fessamontau.

"Beauty and the Beast" will be presented on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 18, 19 and 20 at 7 p.m., at the Township Hall.

Tickets are $1.50 and may be purchased at the door or by calling 877-2228.

For further information, persons may call Beverly Scroggins at 877-2228 or 877-1512, Extension 45.

Current events topic of Lesche Club

Verna Stuart entertained the Lesche Literary Club during its February meeting. The meeting featured Valentine decorations, candy hearts and a dessert luncheon. Nine members attended.

Since several members were absent, February programs were rescheduled until March at the request of Lois Holsinger, speaking for the program committee. Instead, members contributed to a discussion of current events. Roll call was answered by a reading of each member's horoscope.

After a business meeting concerning a change in the by-laws, President Gerry Jackson adjourned the meeting.

Others attending were Burdine Holscher, Ruth Seymour, Bess Henley, Virginia John, Geneva Miller and Betty Harmon.

Lost In This Space

By Andy Sterling

If it's spring, where's the sun?

Lo, the harbingers of spring are upon us, or some such rubbish, and columnists nationwide will be stretching the limits of prose and their readers' patience by waxing poetic on the joys of springtime.

I wish they'd shut up. Midwestern columnists are the worst perpetrators, but don't blame them. They merely reflect their environment. We in the Midwest are always going on about how we wouldn't live anywhere that didn't have seasons. We claim that living with the changing seasons toughens us and gives us a special appreciation for life's ups and downs.

I think it's all really just sour grapes. Since we don't live in California or Florida or Arizona, we make up this great big fib: WHY WE WOULDN'T LIVE THERE IF THEY PAID US TO! Everybody but Bill Bidwill, that is.

But back to those "harbingers of spring." (What the heck is a harbinger, anyway? Is it a bird? If so, where does it spend the winter while the rest of us are freezing our buns off?) Spring is in the air, all right. Locally, the Terrace Garden Club heard a talk about grubs recently. Grubs are beetle larvae, in case you care.

One of the most hallowed harbingers is baseball. Sure enough, the baseball season is almost upon us, with its leisurely unfoldings of wonder. So are slowpitch softball and fishing. I'm hooked on both.

But if spring is sprung, so to speak, why did my damp hair freeze one morning last week? It says somewhere that March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb. But it says here that March usually has to be dragged out spitting and snarling.

Then there's April. You want to know about April? Harken to poet T.S. Eliot: "April is the cruellest month," wrote the "breeding lilacs out of the dead land." April has too much rain and not enough grass. In short, it's a mudhole of a month. April drives everyone crazy by not quite being spring.

Ah, but what about May, you say? "April showers bring May flowers." Actually, in these latitudes, April showers usually bring May showers. According to meteorologists, May is often the wettest month.

(By the way, why do you suppose they call themselves meteorologists? I've never heard them predict meteor showers. But then they usually don't predict the weather, either.)

June, then. Everyone knows June is grand, right? "What is so rare as a day in June?" It's true: June can be breathtaking — especially if you're a sufferer.

Moreover, Mother Nature often shows her pranks by scheduling all the nice days during the workweek, reserving the dregs for the weekend. Just ask the planners of church picnics and softball leagues. (The rain-outs, of course, invariably get made up as August doubleheaders, on the hottest day of the year.)

So now it's July. Ah, summer! The Fourth of July. Fireworks.

Mosquitoes. Yes, millions of little bloodsuckers (which began their miserable little lives as larvae back in the muck produced by April's deluges) now rise for their day in the sun. Boy, do they rise. And so do the wells — on skin unprepared for so much sunshine after all those rainy weekends.

August. Geez, August. August is what the God of the Bible had in mind when he commanded Adam and Eve to make a living by the sweat of their brows. I'll take March back. Fortunately, the pennant races start heating up to distract us from the sweat dripping in our eyes.

September. Back to school, boys and girls! Oh yes, the mold count starts rising, too. Atoch! October. The rind is in full bloom, just in time to make the Homecoming Queen's mascara run down her face for the photograph that will make her weep and curse whenever she looks at it for the rest of her life. October can make you wish you had someplace else to be homecoming to. Arizona, say.

I think I'll stop now. You know what comes after October? Thank goodness it's spring.

Openness, involvement give stepfamilies a healthy start

More than 20 percent of 83.5 million U.S. households are now "blended" families, with more than 1,300 new stepfamilies being added every day. The Ozzie and Harriet nuclear family is branching out.

The complexities that arise in making adjustments can make remarriage an emotional event for all family members. "Bride's" magazine offers these suggestions to ease the transition from single parent to strong stepfamily.

Before the wedding: Planning a life together is important for every couple but, for a stepfamily, it is essential. Topics that can create conflict in marriage, how time, money and energy will be spent, become exaggerated even further by the many family members whose opinions need to be considered.

Other conflicts can result from differences in temperament, background and traditions. The best forum for working out such conflicts is the family meeting, where each member expresses his or her feelings and needs, while everyone contributes possible solutions.

Parents also should discuss before the marriage what role the stepparent will play in the child's upbringing.

"Some of the most successful stepparents have seen their role as similar to that of a camp counselor, an adult who shows interest and affection yet provides leadership," says Carol Brady, a clinical psychologist in Houston, Texas.

During the wedding: From the invitation, which can be issued with the children's names announcing the formation of a "new family," to the reception, where the children's favorite music can be played, there is one rule: When children are a part of your life together, include them in your wedding as much as possible.

They can be your attendants or altar boys, ring bearer or flower girls. Your vows to each other might be followed by a family vow or a prayer of family unity with each member adding a phrase. Your child could take the place of a member of the ritual no longer alive; if the bride's father has passed away, her child might escort her to the altar. Or, as "Bride's" magazine's associate editor, Mili Martini and her fiancé decided, show the importance of the child by having him or her at your side at the altar.

"GoGo," John's daughter, served in the role of "best man" at our wedding," Martini said. "John felt that there was no one else he'd rather have beside him as he made this important commitment, and she was excited to be asked."

Even if your child seems to have adjusted to the idea of your marriage, the wedding day may surprise all of you by making him or her feel insecure. Ask a close relative to reassure and give hugs when needed throughout the day.

If your children are uncomfortable with the idea of participating in the ceremony, include them in other ways. Assign them seats of honor, or mention their names in a special prayer.

Celebrate the return from your honeymoon (which you should take without your children) with a date for the whole family.

Fields
Madison Countian won't go to Congress

Fields said he had no intention of running for Congress. More than 100 people stood and cheered. It was the first boisterous display of the evening.

Then Fields dropped what was a bombshell to many of those present.

"I don't want to drag it out," he said and somebody gasped audibly. "The inevitable is ahead," Fields said. "I'm here to concede."

He paused, tried to smile, then continued in a voice husky with emotion: "I can't say what went wrong. Maybe we misread the issues."

Fields had counted on a level of support in Madison County that did not materialize. He would later turn out to have lost the county by five votes.

Overall, he finished about 6,000 votes behind Costello for the Democratic nomination and barely ahead of Mike Mansfield, Md. Price's top aide.

"We got thumped, and thumped good," Fields said. He thanked his supporters, put down the microphone and moved away to talk to a radio reporter.

Field's campaign manager, Dale Schiebelen, an insurance broker from Glen Carbon, blamed "some very strong pressure from the (labor) unions" for the defeat.

Tori Harrison said Costello, with a 400,000 war chest, won solely because he outspent Fields by a 4-1 margin.

Fields' sister, who was in tears, Harrison said Costello was her own campaign for Democratic committee in Edwardsville. "I don't know if I won and I don't care," she sobbed.

Costello arrived that night in Wood River shortly after midnight. En route to Wood River, a reporter heard Simon on the radio proclaiming victory in the presidential primary. Simon drew an analogy between his landslide victory in his home state and the Greek myth of Antaeus, a giant whose strength was renewed whenever he touched the earth.

"I received my strength by touching the ground in Illinois," said Simon, whose campaign got a much-needed shot in the arm Tuesday.

Minutes later came the voice of Pete Fields: "I thought that the contact with the voter and the sincerity of the effort would make the difference. Obviously, it didn't."

At the Moose Lodge, winners were periodically being announced to a crowd of about 200, which had dwindled to about 50 by the time Costello arrived with his family in tow at 2:28 a.m.

One of the winners was Charles Romani, a write-in candidate for one of two Madison County circuit judge nominations. "Latest I heard, he's still coming," Romani said about 50 minutes before Costello arrived.

Romani gazed around the room, where hangers-on drank beer from plastic cups as they waited for the Chosen One. "Everybody wants to shake your hand and tell you how much they did for you," he said.

Costello, who won in all five counties, would later say, "It's hard for me to believe I won in Madison County although I probably spent more time (here) than any other county in the district."

Costello said he planned to spend the next few weeks "getting re-acquainted with my wife and kids. We haven't spent much time together lately."

Then he went home — to sleep, one imagines, the dreamless sleep of winners. Fields may have spent the night somewhat differently.

Man killed in accident
GRANITE CITY — A 33-year-old Granite City man was killed at 1 a.m. Thursday when the Ford Aerostar van he was driving ran into a train tanker car that was stopped at West 22nd Street near the Adams Street intersection.

Robert J. Budnicki, 2032 Bryan Ave., was pronounced dead at the scene by Ed Werner, Madison County assistant deputy coroner.

The tanker car, belonging to Norfolk and Southern Railways, was the next to last car in a string of 113 cars. Warning signals were operating at the time of the accident.

Authorities. There was no fire. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Trivia
In 1910 the population of Madison was 5,046. By then, State Street had been paved with bricks from the south city limit to 7th Street and Madison Avenue had been paved with cressote blocks.

Recall election process popular

"I think the focus on the events in Arizona with Gov. (Evan) Mecham have made it an issue that's in the public's mind."

Mecham is facing a recall election and, although the recall law has always been on the books, Assistant City Editor Laurie Roberts, director of political coverage at the Arizona Republic, said no one "ever envisioned" a statewide recall.

"Who could have ever foreseen that a grassroots movement headed by a self-avowed homosexual would be able to collect the 300,000 signatures needed to force a ballot in the middle of summer with 102-degree heat?" she asked.

"Now there are a number of other petitions out in relation to the state attorney general and at least eight members of the Legislature are currently (named) on recall petitions."

Arizona law requires the signatures of at least 25 percent of those who voted in the original election in order to place a recall vote. It has no specific rules requiring or defining misconduct.

"They could recall someone because of the color of his hair," Roberts said. "The recall, along with related issues, has literally been the state's top story. It has split families, friends and political parties."

Because it was a three-way race, Mecham was originally elected with only 40 percent of the vote. It's plausible, because of any run-off provision, that a governor elected in May will have received less than 20 percent of the votes cast.

Kansas also has provisions for recall elections, but a legislative reporter for the Topeka Journal, said they have been used, "not frequently," only at the local level "such as school boards."

Helen Hawkins, 2600 Angela Drive, said it was problems with the school-board that prompted her, as a Democratic precinct committeewoman, to begin, two years ago, calling for legislation allowing recall elections. But she said she cannot support Stephens' bill.

"It's a very good idea," Hawkins said. "But I think there must be some proof of malfeasance or conflict of interest; there has to be some criteria set so that a few dissatisfied people don't just start a recall without good reason."

But Stephens' bill doesn't set "proper cause," 11th District State Rep. Sam Wolf, Granite City, said he would have qualms about giving it his support.

"I think there should be some method of determining if I don't think we should turn everybody in the world loose with a petition. I think maybe certain criteria should be met before a petition can start circulating."

State Sen. Sam Vadalabene, Edwardsville, also said he supports the idea of a recall procedure "in general," but said he would have to take a "long look" at a bill before he would decide to support it.

"Elected officials all have to run again," Vadalabene said. "The people can recall them at that time by electing someone else. I think that, in most cases, that is the reasonable way to go."

Stephens said he expects a hard fight ahead. He said the fact that bills in even-numbered years must go to the rules committee and that only bills of an emergency nature are usually acted on — further hurts the chances of action in the near future. Stephens said he doesn't rule out the possibility that some changes will have to be made before the effort is over.

"Basically, I still believe that the people who elect someone should have the right to un-elect them," Stephens said. "That is the real issue."

She also helped develop Project Help, an effort to provide emergency food to the unemployed and their families.

She has served on the state board of Church Women United and has been an active volunteer in her church.

Aloysius J. Becker of Glen Carbon has been named Social Worker of the Year by the district. He has been active in the social welfare field since his graduation from the University of Missouri in 1950 and has a master's degree from St. Louis University.

Becker worked for the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross, the St. Louis Board of Education as a school social worker, and as the director of Mullaphy's Traveler's Aid Society of St. Louis.

In 1967, he assumed a position with the East St. Louis Region of the Illinois Department of Children & Family Services, with supervisory responsibility for field offices in the region. He retired in December after 20 years of service.

THE LAW AND YOU
BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a husband and wife obtain a divorce, one parent will usually be granted custody of the children, with the non-custodial parent ordered to pay child support. Sometimes the parent paying support will realize a substantial increase in income after the divorce. In one recent Illinois case, the father won the Illinois State lottery several years after the custody of the child was awarded to the mother. It is interesting to note what factors the court considered in deciding whether to increase his child support obligation in light of his winnings.

Illinois law provides that a judgment for child support can only be modified if the custodial parent shows a substantial change in circumstances. To demonstrate this substantial change, the party seeking increased child support will have to show that the supporting spouse has an increased ability to pay and that the child has increased needs since the entry of the last court order. It should be noted that if the former spouse's increased ability to pay is shown, the party petitioning the court could probably demonstrate "increased child support" by showing that the child receiving support has grown older and that the cost of living has risen.

In the case noted above, the parties were divorced in 1974. The divorce decree required the husband to pay $25 a week in child support for his son. In 1983, the father's child support payments were stopped because he was unemployed at the time. Later the father was remarried, and in December of 1984, his new wife purchased a winning Illinois State Lottery ticket and placed the money in his name.

The ex-wife filed a petition to modify child support in 1986 based on the fact that the father's income had substantially increased. Evidence was presented that he was receiving $329,084 per year for 20 years. The trial court ordered the father to make monthly child support payments of $2250 retroactively to May 1, 1986.

The father appealed the decision and argued that his ex-wife had failed to show a substantial change in circumstances. The Appellate Court disagreed with him, and noted that his former wife had demonstrated both a substantial increase for her son and the father's increased ability to support the child. The Appellate Court felt that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in awarding the substantial increase in child support based on the father's lottery winnings.

County architecture featured in videotape

Architectural styles of Madison County play a large role in video cassette teaching aids developed by Joe Weber, a professor and area head of art education and art therapy in the department of art and design at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Weber is offering the three video cassettes free of charge to teachers throughout Madison County as a pathway for young students to develop an appreciation of art. "For example, students may not be able to understand Picasso or Rembrandt, but they can understand the house they live in," Weber said.

"Once they start looking at architecture, they will see line, shape, color and texture — the elements of art," he said. "They also begin to see differences in shapes and form."

The cassettes are entitled "Homestead," a pictorial of a rural homestead in Fort Russell Township, representative of rural architecture in Madison County; "Steps in Style," an introduction to Madison County history through its architecture; and "Monuments of Madison County," a tour of historical markers and monuments of the county with an invitation for students to discover where each is located.

Weber is also in the midst of producing two more learning video cassettes, one of which explores the influence early immigrants had on architectural styles in Madison County.

"We tend to think we need to go to New York or Chicago to appreciate architecture, but we also can find interesting architecture on the local level — particularly in Madison County," Weber said.

Pat Imming, an elementary art teacher at Highland Community School, was part of a group that piloted Weber's project. Weber contacted Imming and other area teachers to determine their needs in the classroom.

"I've had pupils study the video and then make houses in clay," she said. "It's been very educational and successful."

"I've used the tapes primarily with fifth grade students to enrich their knowledge of architecture in their own community," Imming said. "I want them to recognize architecture as an art form, that art is all around us and not just in the art room at school."

Weber said Madison County is a great area for diverse architectural styles.

"I also dwelled on Madison County because, when I talked with elementary classroom teachers, they kept saying one of the mandates from the state is to teach local and state history," he said.

"I found a lot of written material to turn to but little visual material. In addition, students in lower grades tend to respond more to visual aids, so these are reasons why I decided to work with video."

The cassettes present a series of slides with narrative commentary. SUE Audio Visual Services helped in the production, Weber said; he did most of his research at Lovejoy Library.

"Once students have learned basic art design through architecture, they will have something to draw upon for creative expression," Weber said. "These tapes will bring that concept to the classroom and, I hope, will spark an interest in art."

Weber said he holds no copyright on the video cassettes, and teachers may make copies if they wish.

"I would like to work with a teacher who decides to use them in a one-hour workshop to show how these tapes can become part of their curriculum," he said. "I don't want teachers to show these just to be showing the class something."

Elderhostel activities scheduled

The schedule of activities for Elderhostel, an educational vacation for people 60 years of age and older, has been announced by the Office of Continuing Education at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Two separate weeks of activities, July 17-23 and July 31-Aug. 6, will be offered at the university.

The three courses to be offered during the first week of Elderhostel include: "Witches' Roots: A Background of Witchcraft," "They Chose America," and "Big Bands of the '30s."

During the week of July 31, course offerings will include: "Both Sides of the Footlights," "Cahokia: The Great Prehistoric Metropolis," and "Mississippi Steamboats and Showboats."

Elderhostel provides educational experiences for older people during the summer at various colleges and universities around the country at minimal cost. Seniors can enroll in up to three non-credit classes, which require no homework and no testing. In addition to the classes, there are usually a number of field trips to places of interest near the college campuses.

Some senior citizens visit several different college campuses during the course of a summer, while others make it a point to return to a favorite school year after year.

For a total cost of $215, senior citizens can visit any one of more than 600 cooperating colleges and universities in almost any state in the country, as well as in Canada, Great Britain, Bermuda, Israel, Italy, Denmark, Finland, Norway, Holland, Sweden, Germany, Scotland, Wales and Mexico.

The cost covers room and board, classes and an extracurricular activities.

A limited number of local residents will be able to participate in the program at SIUE as commuters. The tuition for commuting participants is $165.

For more information, the Office of Continuing Education can be called at 692-3210.

Deadline to apply to math, science academy

Students have until April 1 to complete applications for acceptance at the Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy, Aurora. All materials must be postmarked by that date for students to be considered for enrollment.

Application materials include letters of recommendation from a mathematics teacher, a science teacher and a guidance counselor or principal. Students also must submit grade transcripts from their home school and SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) scores for exams taken between January and April 1, 1988.

A selection committee composed of educators, civic leaders and professionals from across the state screens the applications. "The committee looks for indicators of unique accomplishments and motivation," says Dr. LuAnn Smith, director of admissions and research. "Some of the factors include potential for mathematical reasoning, scientific reasoning, leadership, communication and interpersonal skills."

Committee members review the applications without initial benefit of the SAT scores and in the context of the student's home community and its available resources.

Once a composite evaluation is made by three committee members, the IMSA staff combines the SAT scores in reviewing the applications. Final selection is based on the combination of all items.

The public residential high school for the gifted is one of only three in the country. Any Illinois student, having completed the equivalent of the ninth grade, is eligible to apply.

Applications are available from guidance counselors, principals, educational service centers or from the academy by calling (312) 801-6000. Students will be notified in June of acceptance for enrollment in September.

District 9 at crossroads

The Tri-Cities' image will be seriously damaged if the District 9 Board of Education fights Jason Robertson's enrollment in school.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has already negatively commented on the separate school for Jason, 7, who has AIDS-related complex. Granite City school officials, instead of combating AIDS fear, are spreading it.

We cannot spend thousands to tell people this is a good place to live and do business only to have that image destroyed by how the media covers Jason's case.

Talk of a law suit filed by Tammy Robertson to get her son, Jason, into a regular school places pressure on District 9. Fight or fold, the district can expect criticism from inside and outside the community.

If a suit is filed, District 9 would lose if its only argument were that Jason has AIDS since courts find fear an unacceptable basis for discrimination.

But District 9's unique approach to segregating its AIDS child is that it named him a special education student. District officials note he is behind in his class work and is hurt emotionally because he grows what it means to have AIDS.

District 9 probably would find such arguments hard to defend in court and media coverage would be fair, but negative — Picture the scene of a bunch of men in suits keeping a cute little boy out of school. The outcome for District 9's image is obvious.

Few parents, however, would be comfortable if District 9 agreed to place any AIDS victim in the same classroom with their children. Their fears are medically unfounded, but fear is real and District 9 would likely face a storm of protest if Jason goes to school.

Considering both the response of parents and what is likely in court, District 9's best and only realistic response is to face the inevitable. Jason will be in school.

With that in mind, Granite City could turn another potentially damaging media nightmare into something positive.

Imagine the sight, the positive, inspiring vision that could follow if District 9 decides not to seek a court fight and if — on Jason's first day — Board of Education members, Mayor Von Dee Cruse and other community leaders joined Jason in walking to school. Granite City could look good about itself if that happened.

Then imagine the alternative.

Ready for Washington duty

Now that Gov. James Thompson has led a successful Illinois campaign on behalf of presidential contender George Bush, will the current vice president make room for "Big Jim" on his national ticket? Speculation on this point has been growing and seems certain to increase.

Fueling such discussions is Thompson's often expressed national ambition. When much younger, he wrote that he hoped to occupy the White House from 1984 to 1992, but obviously he is willing to consider later timing. And after the Reagan years, who can call anybody too old for the presidency?

Even though he has not revealed his political plans, the governor has raised $556,000 in campaign funds in the last eight months alone. Kim Fox, executive director of Citizens for Thompson, says there is a total of $840,000 in the campaign treasury.

The nation's only four-term governor, and Illinois' longest serving chief executive, Thompson legally could run for a fifth term but few expect him to do so.

Concern over his fast-changing stances on state budget needs may be a factor in a new survey indicating more people think he is doing a poor job than think he is doing a good job as governor. These kinds of poll results tend to fluctuate a lot, but associates say it is more than a question of whether he could win re-election; they don't detect interest on his part in staying in the governor's mansion (he doesn't live there, anyway) "forever."

Governor since he was 39, the former U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois has reached the ripe old age of 51 and clearly wants a Washington address in what he expects to be a Bush presidency. If not chosen as vice president, he has excellent credentials for a high federal appointment, his friends point out. Are you listening, George?

Fine efforts for fine arts

Sponsoring a series of spring Metro Theater Circus performances at elementary schools is the Madison County Arts Council is doing much to widen youngsters' understanding of and appreciation for fine arts.

The current series of visits by the theater troupe features an educational play, "Songs of River Magic." Combining music, drama and dance, it was written by a St. Louis area poet, Shirley Bradley LeFlore. It tells the story of a boy who goes to the Mississippi River looking for answers about himself, and finds insights into self-acceptance.

The professional touring company appearing at Mitchell School and elsewhere in this county has performed for more than a million young people and adults, including an appearance at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. It is only one of a number of groups obtained by the Arts Council at various times of the year.

A countywide, not-for-profit corporation, the Madison County Arts Council seeks to further arts and education by offering a full range of programs and services to schools, arts groups and citizens. Its contributions to the quality of life in Madison County are substantial.

Street repairs by ward favored

To the editor:

I would like to express my gratitude to one of the aldermen in the 7th Ward, Emerald Dawes. In the time that Mr. Dawes has been an alderman, he has voted "for the good of his residents."

We vote for these men and women to represent us and I can truly say I hear my voice through Mr. Dawes at the council meetings. I would like to thank him for voting against the proposal made by 7th Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen to repair Madison Avenue with $420,000 from motor fuel tax funds and the balance coming from community development funds.

If anyone would like to see the condition of the street in front of my house, I would be glad to shovel it up and send some to them.

I have been waiting for years for my street to be improved. With each ward receiving only $40,000 for repairs, I wonder what my odds are that Pine Street will be chosen. Hmmmm, maybe I will win the lottery someday, too.

Road deaths on upward slide

To the editor:

Winter is almost over and spring will soon be rushing in with its usual unpredictable weather — weather that can make driving conditions hazardous.

Traffic accidents are more likely to happen when roads are wet or slick. In fact, during February, 100 persons were killed in traffic accidents on Illinois highways. So far this year, 210 motorists have lost their lives, compared with 193 during the same period last year.

That's an increase of 17 already, and 1988 is just getting started.

In the five-county area that District

11 covers, there were seven fatalities during February. St. Clair County had four, Madison County had two, Clinton County had one, and Bond and Monroe counties had none.

I urge all motorists to watch carefully for hazardous driving conditions, and reduce speed when necessary, and buckle their seatbelts all the time, even "in town."

Spring is the time of year we look forward to new life. Don't let it bring yours to an end.

BOBBY L. HENRY SR.

Commander, District 11

Coach can't find sponsor for team

To the editor:

I was asked last year to help another man coach a little league baseball team in the Granite City Park District. The boys were 12 and 13 at the time. Last season we couldn't find a sponsor. Bill Brown, the other coach, worked on his mother's house to get the money we needed for uniforms.

The boys, being 13 and 14, have now outgrown their uniforms. I took it upon myself to find a sponsor. I figured that businesses would like to keep the kids busy and get some advertisement too. I was wrong. Finding a sponsor is one of the hardest things I have ever attempted.

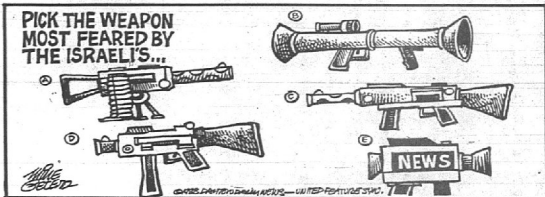

One would figure that with all of our businesses it would not be hard to find a business that would want to help out a little league team. After a month of calling, walking, driving and shaking hands, I have concluded that no one wants to help us out.

Our car dealers, tire shops, gas stations, and our great number of fast food restaurants can't find enough money, out of all the money that we give them, to sponsor my team. What I mean by we is "we the people of Granite City."

These companies are willing to take from us, but they aren't willing to give back to the community. I'm giving to my community and to the future of my community. I give of my time, money and energy to these boys. In return I get the satisfaction of knowing that I taught and helped our future.

One writing style helps

Every newsroom has a writing style — one that each reporter knows how to handle the form for writing everything from abbreviations to ZIP codes.

In this newsroom, The Associated Press style is used. AP provides news to media across the country. Because the writing style used by that news service is familiar to many readers, and occasionally a well-meant note comes to the newspaper. The notes state "errors" in English have occurred though, in fact, the newspaper used correct journalistic style.

Mostly, however, what we receive are letters and press releases that have to be rewritten to conform to the single news style presented in the newspaper.

For example, "underway" is used by many as one word, but the term should usually be presented as two words: "under way." According to AP, "Two words in virtually all uses. The project is under way. The naval maneuvers are under way."

One word only when used as an adjective before a noun in a nautical sense: an underway flotilla.

There are other examples that may be equally troublesome, and which would certainly be done inconsistently by news staff members if the staff was not restricted to a single writing style.

Figures should be spelled. The boy is 1 year old. In English class, formal writing requires the number to be spelled.

— Alright is not acceptable as a substitute for all right, but it seems to enter into much of the correspondence received by the newspaper.

Bible should be capitalized whenever it is used to describe the religious book, but lowercased when used as a non-religious term. My dictionary is my bible.

The news staff continually strives to improve the quality of its work. Consistency in our writing style helps accomplish that goal.

Would you favor an open primary?

Would you favor open primaries in Illinois that would either allow voting without declaring a party preference, but still having to vote a one-party ticket, or would allow voting for a particular office regardless of the candidate's party, similar to the general election format?

John Hommert, Granite City

"Yes. I think there might be some of the candidates on both sides you might like, but if you're locked into a Democratic ticket you can't vote for the others (in different parties)."

Mary Ann Minner, Granite City

"I think it should be open so you can vote for who you want, regardless of their party."

David Davis, Granite City

"Yes. I don't think it's anybody's business who I'm voting for. You see one of the candidates later and they ask you why you voted the way you did."

Keoghs benefit self-employed

By Bob Hardcastle
Investment adviser

Most of the special limitations and restrictions on the design and operation of Self-Employed Retirement Plans, also called Keogh or HR-10 plans, were repealed Dec. 31 by TEFRA, the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act.

Since this means you do not have to be part of a corporation to enjoy higher corporate pension benefits, take some time to consider a Keogh plan. Some of the basic questions are answered here.

Why establish a Keogh plan?

A Keogh plan offers:

•Reduced federal income tax. The amount of your contributions to the plan, within specified limits, may be claimed as a tax deduction.

•Reduced state income tax. Most states do not impose an income tax on amounts contributed to a Keogh plan.

•Future reduction of federal and state income taxes. The investment earnings on assets in a Keogh plan escape taxation until they are distributed to you.

•Portability. If a business changes, plan assets may, under certain circumstances, be transferred tax-free to an individual Retirement Account, a Self-Employment Retirement Plan or another Keogh plan.

•Tax advantages. Distribution. Tax liability at retirement can be minimized by setting up a favorable averaging method for retrieving funds from the plan.

When should a Keogh plan be set up?

The plan must be in place no later than the last day of the investor's tax year. But contributions need not be made until the investor's filing deadline, including any extensions.

What types of Keogh plans exist?

There are two kinds of plans to choose from:

•Defined Contribution. This contribution is based on a portion of the net self-employment income the investor actually reports each year. The emphasis here is on choosing an annual contribution formula, expressed either as a fixed percentage of annual income or as a variable percentage of annual business profits.

The benefit at retirement will be a product of total contributions made and accumulated earnings thereon.

•Defined Benefit. This contribution is based on the amount required to fund an investor-selected retirement benefit which, by the way, cannot exceed a legal limit.

Required contributions each year may vary depending on the amount earned by the plan since the last contribution.

How much can be contributed to a Keogh plan?

•In a defined contribution plan an investor is allowed to contribute the lesser of $30,000 or 25 percent of his earned income from self-employment.

•In a defined benefit plan the investor can make a contribution that will produce a retirement benefit of $90,000 at a normal retirement age of 65 or 100 percent of the average taken from three years of self-employment earned income.

Can investors in a Keogh plan still contribute to an IRA?

Yes, but whether or not the contribution is tax deductible depends on the investor's filing status and income.

If the investor files a single tax return and his adjusted net income is less than $25,000, he will qualify for a fully deductible IRA. He will qualify for a partially deductible IRA if his adjusted net income is between $25,000 and $35,000. If the adjusted net income is greater than $35,000 the IRA will not be deductible.

If the investor is married and files a joint tax return, he will qualify for a fully deductible IRA when the couple's joint adjusted net income is between $40,000 and $50,000. If the joint adjusted net income is greater than $50,000, the IRA will not be deductible. Earnings on a non-deductible IRA will not be taxed until distributed.

What are an employer's obligations to his employees?

An owner-employee who has established a Keogh plan for himself is required by law to provide retirement benefits to employees who are at least 21 years old and have one year of service with the business.

About real estate

By Don Campbell

Bank's 'dog' house great opportunity

Dear Mr. Campbell:

After years of just sitting back and waiting for the "right" house to show up on the market, we have found just the one.

However, the house has been empty for 2½ years. We talked to the real estate broker about it and found out that a local bank owns it. Someone submitted a bid on it last winter and that is when the bank found out that the lawyer had missed a second mortgage on it. The offer was around $60,000, but there actually is $98,000 around it.

Do you think that this is going to be a hands-off deal? If so, why am I should we watch out for? Also, when dealing with a bank that has gotten property back as a default, is there any "tasteful" manner to submit an offer reflecting depreciation in light of its 2½ years of vacancy?

It is way out in the country, and the yard and the rest of the 5 acres are all weeds. The bushes and small trees are dead, and the deck is splitting and dried out. If the other mess is cleared up we want a chance at this place.

J.B.

Answer: "Tasteful" . . . "schmasteful." The bank's got a dog on its hands and it should be weeping with joy at the idea of anyone taking any interest in it.

On several occasions in the past, we have talked about a trend in the real estate business of brokers setting themselves up to represent buyers instead of sellers (which, by law and by the ethics of the business, they do represent whether the buyers are actually aware of this or not).

But in order to represent a buyer fairly, they can only do so by going after property that, for one reason or another, has not been listed and that narrows the list down to properties that are in probate, are "for sale by owner," or are foreclosures back in the hands of the lender. The chances are slim that a property like this has been formally listed by the bank since most banks choose to handle such matters in-house.

So, you have a tailor-made situation here to line up a local broker who, in writing, will dedicate his efforts to representing you, the would-be buyer, exclusively.

First, your broker is going to have to make sure that that overlooked second mortgage has been taken care of because, otherwise, you are not going to be able to get title insurance with a cloud like that hanging over it. I suspect it has been resolved, but it is the starting point for you.

You really are in the cat-bird seat here. The bank is all too aware that the house has been vacant for nearly three unproductive years and that it looks like something you would find in a civet's nest. With your broker's advice you should submit a bid that reflects every precious dead tree limb and every weed on the place. Be unmerciful.

Hardee's gets jump on Easter with puppet pal

Hardee's Food Systems Inc. announced it is repeating one of its most popular promotions this Easter.

Hardee's will once again have Easter Bunny Hand Puppet plush toys available for $1.99 with no food purchase necessary.

The 12-inch-tall Easter Bunny Hand Puppet is peach and beige with a complementing blue bow. It was available at Hardee's restaurants beginning March 1 and the promotion will continue through April 3.

Nancy Yeggy, director of marketing, said Hardee's was repeating the promotion because of the popularity of plush toys and last year's demand for the Easter Bunny Hand Puppet.

"Kids really love plush toys and with the hand puppet, they can play with it and use their imaginations. And I think that makes them popular with the parents, too," Yeggy said.

20 YEARS OF SERVICE. Melvin C. Wilmsmeyer (left), chairman and chief executive officer of Magna Bank of Granite City, presented Elmer L. Wortham (right) with a Seiko Thomas mantle chime clock for his 20 years with the bank. Initially as a courier and mail clerk. He worked in various departments prior to being named supervisor of the customer service and proof departments. Wortham became assistant cashier in February 1974, later serving as a real estate loan officer, followed by promotion to auditor and then vice president and cashier of operations. Wortham is active in the Pontoon Beach Lions Club and serves on the boards of directors of the United Way and the Alcohol Rehabilitation Home.

Consumer tips

Sale requires catalytic converter

By Neil F. Hartigan
Illinois Atty. Gen.

Q. Is it illegal to sell a car without a catalytic converter?

A. Federal law makes it a criminal offense for an auto manufacturer to sell vehicles which are not equipped with the proper pollution control devices, which include the catalytic converter.

It is also a criminal offense for anyone, after having purchased a vehicle, to alter any of the pollution control equipment. Some people, under the false belief that disconnecting the pollution control equipment will substantially increase their vehicle's performance, have disconnected devices despite such legal requirements.

Finally, it is a criminal offense to replace a catalytic converter with one that does not meet specified EPA standards. While it is illegal to sell a new vehicle without the necessary pollution control devices, the law is silent as to whether the operation or resale of a vehicle on which devices have been removed or altered constitutes a crime.

If the seller has knowledge that the device in question was removed or altered, it would be a deceptive practice within the meaning of the Consumer Fraud Act to represent that the device was operational.

Q. What is a generic drug? Are there generic equivalents for all drugs?

A. A generic drug is one called by its basic chemical name instead of a registered brand name chosen by the manufacturer.

They have the same active ingredients as brand name drugs and the only difference between them is the name and usually the price. If your pharmacist gives you a generic drug in place of a brand name product, standard practice and most state laws require that it be generically and therapeutically equivalent.

Generally equivalent means the drug product is one that has the same active ingredients, strength, and dosage form as its brand name counterpart. For a drug to be therapeutically equivalent, it must be chemically the same and must also have the same medical effect.

In answer to your second question, no. Some drugs are protected by patents and are supplied by only one pharmaceutical company. After the original patent expires, other manufacturers may be permitted to produce a generic equivalent, often sold at a lower cost.

Presently, about half the drugs on the market are available generically, offering you the possibility of savings.

Illinois Power Company performing balancing act, sans tightrope

Not all balancing acts are performed by aerialists on circus tightropes.

The newly published Illinois Power Co. annual report quotes Wendell J. Kelley, chairman and president of the utility, as striving to balance simultaneously the interests of all parties affected by IP's performance.

The 1987 calendar year was notable for the company's first production of electric power by nuclear power at its Clinton, Ill., plant and for the retirement of Assistant Vice President Carl E. Mathias after nearly 45 years of service. A Granite Citizen, Mathias is remaining active in Southwestern Illinois economic development programs.

IT WAS ON FEB. 27, 1967, that the $3.8 billion Clinton power station achieved its first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction.

All five federal nuclear regulatory commissioners supported granting a full-power license for Clinton on April 10, and the station went into commercial operation April 24, supplying about 15 percent of IP customers' electricity by mid-summer.

On July 15, the Illinois Com-

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

merce Commission issued an order specifying the station's depreciation rate and how its decommissioning costs will be funded.

ICC HEARINGS ENDED in August, on the first phase of the audit to evaluate the reasonableness of the station's cost, but the commission didn't issue an interim order. Audit firms chosen by the ICC will file the second phase of their report this year, and the ICC's final order is to be issued in late 1988, covering both phases.

Currently — just couldn't resist that word when talking about electricity — $1.5 billion of Clinton's cost is included in the rate base and "earning a return," IP says.

It remains uncertain how much of the total cost will be recovered through rates.

CONSUMERS HERE recall that a two-part increase approved in 1985 went into effect in October 1986 and April 1987.

The approved, redesigned rates compacted the entire 15 percent increase into four summer months in 1987, creating a sharp difference between summer and winter rates and angering many customers.

When it got unusually hot early last summer, tempers as well as temperatures rose.

THE GOOD NEWS is that this summer's residential rates will be decreased by $23 million to partly make up for last summer.

The bad news is that up to $2.3 billion ($3.8 billion minus $1.5 billion) still is left to be absorbed in rates — residential, industrial, commercial and/or miscellaneous.

As Kelley explains it, "On Nov. 19, 1987, we asked the ICC to increase electric revenue by an average of 11 percent in November 1988 and to increase rates annually by a smaller amount for six to nine years thereafter.

"A RATE DECREASE would follow (10 years from now):

"Our requested increase reflects the remaining cost of constructing Clinton plus operating costs for the plant, the effect of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, and changes in other operating costs.

"The annual increases after 1988 would be based on the rate of inflation for the previous year. A dollar-amount floor would assure minimum annual rate increases averaging about 4 percent, and a ceiling of 5.9 percent annually would shield customers from unusually high increases.

"Our proposal includes discounts for senior citizens, a special rate for certain apartment dwellers, and three billing options for residential customers. The ICC has 11 months to decide on our plan."

WHERE'S THE BALANCE?

"We believe our proposal balances the interests of all the parties concerned."

"It fulfills our commitment to keep our rates competitive with those of other utilities and with the price of alternate energy sources.

"It minimizes the impact of a dramatic rate increase on our customers. And it recoups our investment in Clinton and earns for our shareholders a fair return on their investment, although it somewhat delays cost recovery compared to traditional ratemaking."

AROUND THE REGION:

—Forty-five people crowded into a Columbia City Council meeting in Monroe County this month to watch officials decide whether to allow construction of a 27-foot-tall sign at Illinois 3 and Edelweiss Drive. The sign is for a proposed McDonald's Restaurant at that site.

By a 6-1 vote, the variance was approved. But city fathers stood tall and turned down a proposed 40-foot sign.

There evidently is much hunger for hamburgers in Columbia, where — on the same night — council members granted Hardee's a variance to include a drive-through window in its plans for a restaurant.

METRO EAST is the second largest metropolitan area in Illinois. The Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission is reminding legislators and Gov. James R. Thompson, who last year approved a regional information system for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission but vetoed one for Southwestern.

Thompson also zapped SIMARCO with such a veto two years ago. State Sen. Sam M. Vandalabene is trying to make amends with a $50,000 appropriation be introduced for 1989 consideration.

Madison County, six other counties and 574 communities say it is vital that the local planning agency update its extensive information base on sewer and water systems, streets and highways, population characteristics, taxes and a variety of economic data.

Officials say such information is necessary to attract companies and jobs to this region. They ask, "Four-term firm wouldn't slash us with his veto pen a third time, would he?"

Bell enhancing emergency calls

In a move to make the enhanced version of the 9-1-1 emergency number available to more people, Illinois Bell is asking the Illinois Commerce Commission to approve new prices and other changes in how the service is provided.

In addition, communities that wish to contract for enhanced 9-1-1 service for periods of 60 or 120 months will receive reduced monthly rates.

An enhanced 9-1-1 system allows both the caller's telephone number and address to be displayed on a screen at the 9-1-1 answering point. In addition, each call is routed to the 9-1-1 answering point assigned to the caller's area.

The changes requested by Illinois Bell will be especially beneficial to areas that get part of their police service from switching centers that serve more than one community, a spokesman said.

"We are seeking to charge local governmental units for the number of lines actually served by an enhanced 9-1-1 system rather than on the total number of lines served by the switching center," said Gary Bennett, Illinois Bell product manager for 9-1-1.

He said local governmental agencies in several parts of the state are anxious to take advantage of legislation passed in the last session of the Illinois General Assembly that provides for a local referendum to finance 9-1-1.

"This new tariff will allow us to provide specific prices to these areas so that they can lay the proper groundwork for their referendum," Bennett said.

Some public safety experts believe the new features offered by an enhanced 9-1-1 system can reduce the time it takes for police, fire and medical teams to respond to emergency calls.

Club learns about Benjamin Franklin

Preceptor Beta Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met at the home of Linda Koenig.

In the business meeting reports were given by the Executive Board members and committee chairmen.

Koenig, program chairman, said the group will continue to study the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, focusing on the signers.

Facts about Benjamin Franklin were presented by Carol Cathey.

Franklin, author and printer of "Poor Richard's Almanac" two centuries ago, chronicled his wit and wisdom. As a printer, by the age of 22, his Pennsylvania Gazette was already successful and would continue to be so for 20 years. Scientist and inventor of useful items, such as bifocal glasses and swimming fins, he was committed to learning through experimentation. Franklin, a linguist, spoke six languages. By age 42, he was a wealthy man able to retire into public service. A little known honor bestowed upon him was having a state named for him in 1784. The State of Franklin struggled for three years before reverting back as a portion of North Carolina.

The Bridges of Friendship Basket drawing was won by Carolyn Walsh, and several members received gifts from Beta Buddies.

Roberta Crawford invited the chapter to her home for the next meeting.

Others attending were Vickie Barth, Marilyn Lumpkins and Cheryl Smith.

GOOD DEED: Eagle Scout Joe Boushward presents Colonial Haven Nursing Home resident Nora Stallings with a fruit basket as a Scouting project.

Eagle Scout project turns into rewarding experience

Eagle Scout Joe Boushward discovered a Scout project can be a rewarding experience when he thought of the idea of making fruit baskets for the residents of Colonial Haven Nursing Home.

He first contacted a committee of the troop to get approval, then contacted the nursing home to see what kind of fruit to purchase.

He determined how many residents there were so he would know how many baskets to make. Since some were unable to eat certain foods, he decided to give those residents a box of Kleenex and baby powder.

With a goal of 120 fruit baskets and 10 other baskets, he set to work selling candy bars in front of local grocery stores to raise the money needed for the fruit and other items. He enlisted the help of boys and parents of the troop.

After the fruit was purchased, everyone gathered at the Ponton Senior Citizens Hall to assemble the baskets, and they also made a big fruit basket for the Ponton seniors.

The day before Thanksgiving, Joe, the boys and parents visited the nursing home and delivered the baskets to each room.

"The joy and happiness brought to these people made this project very worthwhile," a spokesman said.

FEET FIRST

LOSING A TOENAIL

By Dr. Claude Hiles

A patient may lose a toenail either to disease, trauma, or surgery, but this is not usually a painful process. Since the nail has no nerve endings, there is no pain directly associated with damage to the nail itself. If the nail is removed, either purposely or by accident, the discomfort felt is from the underlying tissue that has been traumatized. Once that tissue is healed, there will be no discomfort. The patient who loses a nail will be able to function quite normally. This is because the toenail really serves no useful function to modern man. Because blood flow to the foot is not as good as it is to the hands, toenails grow to regular length at about one-third the pace of fingernails.

Toenails are good indicators of your overall health. Circulatory diseases, diabetes, and some infections are occasionally diagnosed after a sign of the disease is noticed in the nail. Preventive health care includes periodic visits to a podiatrist for routine examinations. Contact my offices at 1930 State St. and at 5203 Chippewa, Suite 306, for treatment of all general foot problems and in-house surgery. ## Job's Daughters honors its past bethel queens

Bethel 43 of Granite City, International Order of Job's Daughters, held its regular meeting Feb. 23. Honored Queen Vickie Becker presided, under the direction of Bethel Guardian Kathleen Offit and Associate Bethel Guardian Dale O'Beir.

In attendance were past Honored Queens Lisa Gibbons, Diane Kaltmayer, Paula Bills, Beth Barr, Melanie Paschedag, Christy Dawson and Michelle Hartline. Gibbons and Kaltmayer were presented with majority certificates, and all the past honored queens were presented with a small gift in recognition of Queen's Night.

Members discussed their recent trip to Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Gardens, and their help with the luncheon for the Masonic Grand Lodge School of Instruction, plus help with the Eastern Star chicken dinner.

Plans were made to attend the Grand Session in April; to participate in a Ritual Competition; and to hold a School of Instruction for the southern district Job's Daughters in May.

After the meeting, refreshments were served in the dining hall.

Takes second in drafting contest

Fifty-five students from six area high schools recently participated in the Illinois Drafting Educators Association drafting contest held at the Belleville Campus of Belleville Area College.

Students demonstrated skills in three different areas, mechanical, architectural, and introductory drafting. A registered architect from a local firm and instructors from BAC's drafting department judged the work of the students. Winners received drafting supplies and are eligible for state competition held April 23 at the University of Illinois at Champaign.

Award winners included Bryan D. Smith, Granite City High School, who finished second in mechanical drawing.

Hospital Auxiliary donates $150,000 toward CT scanner

GRANITE CITY — A donation of $150,000 to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, to be used for the purchase of a CT Scanner, was approved by members of St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary at its general membership meeting. Since 1982, the scanner equipment has been used through a lease agreement and was recently upgraded with a 512 dzanza, a high resolution camera and a new X-ray tube.

During this time period, scanning activity has more than doubled from 1,500 procedures per year in 1982 to 2,900 procedures in 1987, according to Paul Raczkiewicz, SEMC executive vice president.

Another contribution, amounting to $5,000, was given to SEMC Educational Programs that are designed and presented through its on-site satellite teleconferencing capabilities.

The satellite receiving dish is used only for patient and staff education and the auxiliary has given $5,000 each year for three years toward the cost of this project.

Many more associates at SEMC have been afforded an opportunity to attend educational programs than would have been possible if they had been required to travel to an off-site location, Jack Grieves, SEMC vice president, said.

Helen Urban served as chairman of the membership event held in the Wieseman Room and attended by 92 members.

Sister Mary Jerome gave the luncheon invocation. Among the guest speakers were Mayor Von Dee Cruse and Jimmy Lepping.

Lepping, an SEMC employee since 1981 as a certified occupational health nurse, is vice president of Providence. Providence is a corporation at the medical center that provides comprehensive Occupational Services to the Metro-East business and industrial area.

Cruse gave a slide presentation on the downtown development project and reviewed proposed new business locations.

Lepping spoke on a new Work Hardening program now in progress at the SEMC Wellness Center.

Lepping and Karen Dannenberg, coordinator of Granite City industrial medicine program, were two of four nurses selected from the United States to visit Australia and give presentations at an International Occupational Health Conference.

In Australia, Lepping reviewed the topic, "Work Hardening and the Role of the Occupational Health Nurse: An Alternative to Delayed Recovery Syndrome." Dannenberg's subject was entitled "Drug Screening in the Work Place: An Occupational Health Nursing Perspective."

Appointed to serve on the auxiliary's nominating committee to prepare a slate of new officers were Sally Gracey from the executive board and members Ann Miller and Adele Balcer.

St. Joseph plans craft fair

In what may be its last social function as a parish, St. Joseph Catholic Church, 2101 State St., will hold its Spring Crafts Bazaar on March 26 to 27.

More than 1,000 items made by the church's crafts class will be on sale in the church basement, to be decorated in an Easter and Spring motif.

Attendance prizes will be given every 15 minutes for children and every 30 minutes for adults.

Admission is free, and a light luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. The bazaar will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. William Fisherkeller, pastor of the 87-year-old church, said that it is "80 percent" probable that St. Joseph will merge with Sacred Heart and St. Margaret Mary churches by June.

Methodists convene at Cervantes Center

The Methodist Church in America, with delegates representing the United States and nations throughout the world, will gather April 26 to May 6.

The United Methodist's quadrennial General Conference, the only body which may speak or legislate for the United Methodist Church, will meet at the St. Louis Cervantes Convention Center.

Almost 1,000 delegates, with equal representation by lay persons and clergy, will meet. Delegates were elected in 74 regional conferences within the United States and in 31 conferences or autonomous church bodies throughout the world.

Large numbers of visitors are expected to be attracted to this policy-making meeting for the denomination. The denomination has 9 million members worldwide with more than 50,000 members in the St. Louis area, and more than 150,000 United Methodists in eastern Missouri and western Illinois. A United Methodist General Conference last met in St. Louis in 1970.

Delegates may approve or deny the proposals or petitions filed with the secretary of the General Conference. Some possible legislation includes: authorization of a new hymnal (last revised in 1966) for congregational worship; establishment of the first United Methodist University on the continent of Africa. Probably in Zimbabwe; retention of the present language in the Social Principles stating that homosexuality "is incompatible with Christian teaching"; and restricting the ordination of gays; approval of a proposal to adopt a new theological statement for the denomination, which others feel would radically alter the doctrinal stance approved at the 1972 General Conference; and the adoption of new evangelism programs to address significant membership loss in the past few years.

A special feature of the conference will be the presentation of a musical play, "Through Church Windows," written and produced by Central Methodist College (Fayette, Mo.) professors Donald Eldson and Paul Drummond. The May 1 evening performance is reserved for delegates and conference officials. A 3 p.m. performance is open to the public. Admission will be $3.

For tickets write to: Charles W. Miller, 13036 Geranium Court, St. Louis, Mo., 63146, before April 18.

The public is invited to all General Conference sessions.

The Word

God gives power to living

We all need power for living. Some people seem to have tremendous reserves of inner strength. They exhort us to look at ourselves for that power, the power of positive thinking, etc.

But real power for living, or I should say, the power for living, comes from God. The Bible promises, "The God of all grace... will himself perfect, confirm, strengthen and establish you" (1 Peter 5:10). This is a wonderful promise which is a part of the "good news" of Jesus Christ.

You see, this promise is not for you if you are not a Christian. If you have not trusted Christ to cleanse you from your sin, and if you have not dedicated your life to following Christ, this promise is not for you.

You will have to depend on your own reserves of inner strength. But don't get overconfident. Sooner or later you will come to the end of your rope. We all do. Many a nervous breakdown has resulted from a failure to acknowledge this.

If you want to know peace, turn to Christ right now. Bow before him. Receive new life from him. Dependence upon Christ is not a sign of weakness.

Christ is the source of life itself. And if Christ is living in you, "Greater is he who is in you than he who is in the world" (1 John 4:4).

Repertory sets fall-winter schedule

By Frank Hunter
Staff affiliate

Some people get up bright and early while the rest of us just get up early.

But Steve Woolf hits in the first category, a bird with everything neatly in hand.

Woolf, producer at The Repertory Theater of St. Louis, already has assembled the 1988-89 fall-winter season of plays and musicals at a time when a lot of people have not even settled their 1987 tax bills with Uncle Sam.

With customary enthusiasm, Woolf ticked off the list, noting that casting will get under way later in the year.

"Candide," the mid-1970s Stephen Sondheim-Leonard Bernstein musical opens the season

Sept. 7 and runs through Oct. 7.

"Boy Meets Girl," Sam and Bella Spewack's 1930s comedy set in Hollywood, is set to run Oct. 12 to Nov. 11. It will be a joint effort between The Rep and The Acting Company, founded by actor/director John Houseman. Production of the show is subject to final negotiations with The Acting Company.

The show will rehearse at The Rep, with costumes and settings designed in St. Louis. A national tour is planned, with The Rep credited as co-producer.

"Steel Magnolias," is The Rep's holiday attraction, slated to run Nov. 30 to Dec. 30. It will be the nation's first production of the off-Broadway comedy hit starring Rosemary Prinz, Mary Fogarty and Kate Wilkinson.

Set in Alabama, "Steel Magnolias" involves six women who spin out their hopes and dreams in a local beauty parlor.

Woolf said the play is "a very warm piece bathed in the milk of human kindness, liberally laced with six southern accents."

"Off Shore Signals" is a world premiere scheduled for Jan. 4 to Feb. 3. Written by Roger Cornish, the show tells the true story of a World War II diplomat made suddenly aware of classified information related to the progress of the European conflict.

The drama focuses on complex diplomatic decisions as political forces in the United States struggle to bring the facts to light.

"St. Joan," George Bernard Shaw's classic drama of 15th century Joan of Arc, is set to run Feb. 8 to March 10.

"The theater hasn't presented a Shaw play in many years," Woolf said, "and we're delighted with this choice. St. Joan is a great piece by a brilliant writer."

"Noises Off," the raucous English farce about backstage life in London, closes The Rep season with productions scheduled for March 15 to April 14.

The comedy is one of the funniest plays in recent memory and played the American Theater during the 1965-66 season. Woolf is very pleased with the state of things at The Rep.

"Our attendance and subscriptions are way up and audiences really seem to like what we have been offering," he said.

Klingon officer to appear at 'Star Trek' convention

Michael Dorn, the actor who portrays Lt. Worf, the Klingon officer, on "Star Trek: The Next Generation," will be the featured guest at a two-day "Star Trek" convention, to be held from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, March 19-20, at the Day's Inn downtown, 333 Washington Ave., St. Louis.

The convention is being produced by Creation Conventions, a New York-based company that has staged similar conventions for 17 years.

Linda Mazzola, a spokesperson for Creation, said the event will include trivia contests, "sound-alike" contests (in which fans try to mimic their favorite "Star Trek" characters), showings of episodes of the original "Star Trek" series and the "Star Trek" blooper reel.

Tickets for the convention cost $11 per day if purchased in advance through Ticketmaster outlets, and $13 per day at the door. Tickets for children under 12 will cost $8.

LaPhonso's blocks help send Lincoln Tigers to state again

By Carl Jacobs
Staff writer

CARBONDALE—LaPhonso Ellis did his best imitation of a helicopter blade in leading East St. Louis Lincoln to its second straight trip to the state tournament.

Ellis, the Tigers' 6-10 center, waved his long arms in rotary-like fashion and blocked seven Centralia shots in the first quarter and rejected 10 in all.

The Orphans could do nothing with the cutting blades and Lincoln cruised to a 69-41 win in the Carbondale Class AA Super-Sectional at the SIU Arena on Tuesday. Ellis had 19 points and grabbed 13 rebounds in addition to his 10 rejections.

The Tigers (25-4), defending state champions, will take on Evansville (25-5) in the state quarterfinals at 7:15 Friday in Champaign's Assembly Hall. Evansville defeated Warren 66-61 in the Elgin Super-Sectional.

"I don't know if intimidated is the right word, but he made us have second thoughts," Orphan coach Bob Bogle said of Ellis' blocked shots.

Centralia (17-13) wasn't going to install a slowdown game against the Tigers, but instead was hoping to work the ball inside and dish off for a baseline shot.

When Ellis trashed that plan, the Orphans were left for dead.

"We wanted to play an honest defense," Tiger coach Bennie Lewis said. "So we went where the ball went and LaPhonso took care of Centralia's strategy by not letting them come inside."

"We wanted to make five or six passes, get the ball inside and then kick it out to the wings," Bogle said. "We knew we didn't have the talent to go up and down the floor with them."

Because of Lincoln's cold shooting, the Orphans were in the game after the first quarter

CENTRALIA 06 05 13 17-41
ESL LINCOLN 16 15 25 69-41
CENTRALIA: Cooksey 12, Adams 9, Kelly 7 (1 foul), Knott 4, Miller 4 (1 foul), Smith 3 (1 foul), Sliker 2, Scott 1, P-O-13 (3 foul-outs, PF-12).
ESL LINCOLN: Ellis 10 (13 rebounds, 10 blocks), Martin 16 (8 steals), Johnson 17, Bradshaw 7 (1 foul), Ford 2, Lewis 2, Mottley 2, Nash 2, P-O-29 (1 foul), P-T-10, PF-11.

and still had slim hopes of an upset at intermission. The Tigers rushed shots and came away hitting only 34 percent in the first half.

"We didn't make Centralia play defense in the first half," Lewis said. "Our shot selection wasn't good. We were shooting too quick instead of working the ball around."

Lincoln started out three of 10 from the field, but its tough defense had them up 8-4. Cuonzo Martin turned one of his six steals into two of his 16 points to give Lincoln a 15-6 lead after the first quarter. The Tigers struggled the rest of the first half and led 25-11 at intermission.

"You're going to have slow starts to a game," Lewis said. "We usually get into our game by the third quarter."

Lincoln settled into its game in the second half, hitting its first eight shots, including an alley-oop slam dunk by Ellis from Lawrence Bradford. Ellis was fouled on the play and hit the free throw. The surge gave the Tigers a 40-22 lead.

Martin then took over, stealing three passes off the press and anchoring the fast break.

"Martin amazes me," Lewis said. "He hustles and he has a good game every game whether he scores or not. He is always somewhere near the ball."

The Tigers put their entire game together during a 15-4 spurt in the third quarter. Ellis' rebound basket of his own shot gave Lincoln a 50-24 lead at the end of the third quarter.

The key to the Tiger run was the full-court press Lewis installed.

"They are just a very talented ballclub," Bogle said of the Tigers. "It will take a good team to beat them."

BAC wins

Wilfred Wigfall scored 11 points to help Belleville Area College come back from an early 15-point deficit for a 61-59 win over Chowan College in the first round of the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament Tuesday in Hutchinson, Kan.

The Dutchmen (27-6) trailed 17-2 early in the first half before starting a gradual comeback. They finally tied Chowan, of Murfreesboro, N.C., at 30-30 and the game was tied 34-34 at halftime.

Sherman Igess led the Dutchmen with 16 points and Jeff Sonhouse added 14. Wigfall, a member of Venice High School's state championship team in 1987, was the only other BAC player in double figures. Madison High School product Anthony Valentine had two points.

BAC plays at 6 p.m. tonight against Casper, Wyo. (29-6), as the 16-team double elimination tournament continues.

Trojans 4th at Charleston

The Madison Trojans finished fourth in the 30 schools at the Charleston Indoor Invitational on Saturday.

Jessie Leonard and Ian Smith won championships in the meet, which kicked off the track season in the same town where the season will end with the state championships in May. Leonard long jumped 22-1/2 to win that event while Ian Smith, the defending 400 meter state champion, won the 440 yard dash with a time of 51.96 seconds.

Others who scored points for Madison, which finished with 34 points, were Howard Murray; fourth in the high jump, 6-2; Leonard, second in the 60 yard dash, 6.45 seconds; and James Whitehead, fifth in the 600 yard dash, 1:28.53.

St. Anne won the meet with 66 points. Cairo was next with 40 points and Lewistown edged the Trojans for third place with 38 points.

Briggs succeeds Long at Trojanettes' helm

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

MADISON—For years, Luvienia Long fielded one of the best girls track teams in this part of Illinois.

The Madison Trojanettes regularly were big winners and sent a strong contingent on to the state meet in May. It doesn't appear to be much different this year—with one exception.

Long is no longer the Trojanettes' den mother—at least officially. Although she is still teaching at Madison High School, Long has surrendered her coaching duties to her assistant for the past eight years, Gene Briggs.

Since Briggs has been around and is familiar with the girls and the program, the transition should be smooth and the Trojanettes' wealth of talent should allow them to be among the best teams in the area again.

"We're not even close to starting from scratch," Briggs said. "Mrs. Long has built a great program here and we have a lot of talent coming back. We should be hard to beat."

The Trojanettes have a solid nucleus of eight seniors and juniors who have played a major part in Madison's success the past two years.

Last season, the Trojanettes took state championships in the 400 meter relay and 800 medley while taking sixth in the Class A state meet. But the Trojanettes mishandled the baton in the 800 meter relay and were disqualified while Tammy Dea was injured and unable to defend her state title in the 400 meter dash.

Deal has graduated, as has Lisa Davenport, who went to state. State qualifier Dezona Echols has transferred, but five others who went to state are back this year. They are seniors Sheila Marshall and Chelsea Smith, juniors Melissa Davenport and LaGloria Marshall, and sophomore Shalonda Virginia.

The Trojanettes qualified for state with sectional championships in the 400, 800 and 1600 meter relays as well as the 800 medley.

They have 26 girls on the roster right now, and 18 of them are sophomores and freshmen, so Briggs seems set for the next couple of years. Only Sheila Marshall and Chelsea Smith are seniors.

"There is a large amount of potential here," Briggs said. "We started practice on Jan. 18, so we have had nine weeks without a meet (the first one is Saturday in the Charleston Indoor Invitational). If they can maintain their attitude through that time, the boredom should be gone."

"I'm real pleased at this point. And the two seniors are doing a great job of leadership."

They're four-year runners, have gone to state and know what it's about. And they are honor students, which is what it's all about."

In addition to the seniors, juniors Debra Blakely, Sharon Browley, Melissa Davenport, Mary Helen Giles, LaGloria Marshall and Vivian Turner, form a tremendous nucleus.

"Each girl's goal should be to do the best she can do," Briggs said. "They do that and if it doesn't qualify them for state, I will still be satisfied. But I think all of them have making state as a goal."

The Trojanettes should be strong in the sprints and relays with Sheila Marshall, Browley, LaGloria Marshall, Turner and sophomore Nicole Walker.

"We also have depth in the middle distance, which we haven't always had," Briggs said. "Our sprints and middle distances will be our strongest areas. From 800 (meters), on down, we have no problems."

The middle distance runners include Chelsea Smith, Blakely, Davenport, Vivian Turner and Valonda Turner, and Virginia. But Briggs is looking for more hurdlers behind Smith, sophomore Deanna Brown and freshman Shelly Hahne and Debbie Schalk.

"We need to do some work on our field events," Briggs said. "We have some ability there, but we need to get better performances."

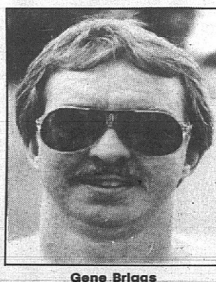

Sophomore Brandi Woods is the Trojanettes' long distance runner.

"The only areas we're struggling in right now are the two-mile, the field events and depth in the hurdling," Briggs said. "Our feeling on who will be where is the returners have the spot as long as they do the job. But the freshmen are pushing."

"We're well balanced and we should have all our questions answered by mid-April. We'll be getting into our major meets then (Greenville Relays, Madison County Meet, Red Bud Relays and the post-season)."

Briggs sees Carlinville, Freeburg, Southwestern and Columbia as the strongest competition in the area.

"If anyone else gives us strong competition, they would have to be a surprise," Briggs said. "This is the most girls we've had out and if it weren't for the natural attrition, we would have even more. We're ready to go."

Gene Briggs

Smith, Leonard lead Trojan track squad

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

MADISON—You know all about competition between rival high schools. But how about some healthy and friendly competition between two teams at the same high school.

Perhaps nowhere is that intrascholastic competition more in evidence than at Madison High School between the boys and girls track teams. Both are usually deep in talent and have several contenders for the state meet.

Last spring, the Trojanettes had a leg up on the Trojans when they finished sixth at state (the boys were 10th) and won two state titles in relay events.

But the Trojans didn't fare all that badly. Ian Smith took a state championship in the 400 meter run. Jessie Leonard also qualified for state, as did Jay Blakely, Gary Stanley and Otis Ware.

Smith and Leonard, both juniors, are the leading returners for coach Charles Steptoe's squad. Along with high jumper Howard Murray and shot put and discus thrower Fred Straubers, they anchor a Trojan team with more lofty ambitions for this year.

"We have a lot of slots to fill," Steptoe said. "But we won our sectional and finished 10th in the state and we have quite a few people coming back. We'll see how it works out."

The Trojans have 25 athletes out for the team, which doesn't compare with some of the larger schools in the area. But Steptoe hopes this quality is good enough to compete with the others' quantity.

"We will be rebuilding to a certain extent," he said. "And (See TROJANS, Page 40)

Knollman picks CMSU

Wendy Knollman has signed a letter of intent to play volleyball at Central Missouri State University.

Knollman, a 5-7 outside hitter, helped lead Granite City High School to a 22-7 record and regional championship last fall. She was an all-conference and all-state selection. Knollman has also won two letters in basketball and three in track at GCIS.

"We are excited about Wendy joining our program," CMSU coach Peggy Martin said. "She is very much in the mold of an Emily Appelbaum, one of our graduating seniors who was a four-year starter for us. With five senior starters graduating, we are losing a lot of quality from our program, but we feel Wendy will be replacing quality with quality."

Knollman will be joining one of the top collegiate volleyball programs in the country at CMSU, located in Warrensburg, Mo. Martin was named NCAA Division II Coach of the Year this past season after leading the Jennies to a 42-4 record and a second-place finish in the NCAA Division II tournament.

Wendy Knollman

The Jennies have been nationally ranked each of the past five seasons and have won the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship six straight years. In 12 seasons under Martin, the Jennies have never had a losing season and have compiled a 410-117-5 record for a .774 winning percentage.

Slobo a survivor — and winner

By Dan Caesar
Staff affiliate

He showed up in town eight years ago on a whim. He had little money lining his pockets, no job and no guarantee that he would even get a fair shot.

None of that bothered Sloba Ilijevski. He was confident in his abilities — so confident that he was not disheartened to be the seventh goalkeeper in the 1980 Steamers' camp in which only two would make the cut.

But he caught Steamers coach Pat McBride's eye and made the team. And he really helped make the team as he developed into the premier goalkeeper in the Major Indoor Soccer League's 10-year history.

Ilijevski reached a milestone March 9 when he became the first goalie in league history to win 150 career games when the Steamers beat Wichita 4-3.

But it has been the most frustrating year for Ilijevski in what has been an illustrious career. In eight seasons he has never gone through anything as agonizing as he has experienced this season, including a personal 12-game losing streak — the longest of his career — that preceded his 150th victory. And the team is suffering through the worst season in its history, with a 13-31 mark heading into Friday's 7:35 p.m. game at The Arena vs. Wichita.

"Looking back at all those losses, I can't think of even one where he was the one to blame," Steamers coach Tony Glavin said. "It certainly wasn't his fault."

Ilijevski was philosophical about the situation.

"My dad always told me after good times come bad times," he said. "We've had some good times here. And he said after bad times come good times. So I'm still looking forward to next year."

"But it is time to look back, too, when such a milestone is achieved."

"It's emotional," he said. "I can say, 'my god, 150 games.' Now I can think back at all the work that was done, what sweat was taken out to do it. I think about all the players who were here, who helped me get that. Those were 150 great nights, 150 games that we sing after we win. Yes, it's special."

He never envisioned anything near what developed when he showed up at training camp in the fall of 1980.

He had come to the United States in 1978 from his native Yugoslavia to play outdoor soccer for Detroit in the North American Soccer League. He later became a free agent and signed with Atlanta. He tried to catch on with indoor teams in Philadelphia and Chicago in 1980 before he came to the Steamers as a last-gasp effort.

"I came here with two weeks left on my visa, and the Steamers were my last chance," he said. "I had heard they were having almost all American players on the team, but I figured it was my last chance. I came here with 20 bucks in my pocket without knowing how I'd get home if I got cut. Then there were six other keepers here. It was a big, big risk."

But he quickly emerged as a legitimate candidate and ended up being the club's No. 1 goalkeeper that season.

From there he has gone on to set numerous league records, including career shutouts (six), decisions (288), shots faced (9,265) and saves (4,813). With such longevity also come records such as most career losses (133).

"I never thought eight years ago that anything like this could happen," he said. "I was thinking on a day-to-day basis, not even for one year."

But now, at 38, Ilijevski is thinking about one more year, which is the amount of time remaining on his contract.

"His work ethic is outstanding," Glavin said. "He puts in a lot of time, a lot of effort. He's never let himself go down. The only thing that has slowed down is his speed. He's not as fast as when he was 32. And the game has speeded up, too. But that really hasn't affected him because he positions himself properly. That makes up for a lot."

teams like Wesclin and Highland are always going to be strong. But I don't see any of them posing a big threat to us right now."

Smith heads up the sprinting portion of the squad. A transfer from Hazelwood East, he also starred for the Trojan football team last fall. He will run the 100, 200 and 400-meter dashes. Leonard will run the 100 and 200 and also head up the field events in the long jump, in which he qualified for state last year, and the triple jump.

"I had a 10.8 in the 100 and Jessie ran an 11.1," Steptoe said. "They're in friendly competition with one another. They are certainly among the top few in the area and the state. And they're both levelheaded. I would say if I can keep from coaching them down, they should do very well again."

Joining them on the sprints and relays will be returning letterman Ricky Ball (a senior) and junior James Whitehead, along with Quincy Williams, Demarque Crockwell, Robert Pickett and Develyn Cameron.

Middle distances will be handled by James Whitehead, junior Scott Kostencik, junior Glenn Dixon and freshman Jose Dixon. The Dixons are also hurdlers along with senior Kenny Griggs and sophomore Darnell Dan-drige.

Charles Steptoe

The long distance running will be handled by returning letterman Marvin Gates and Anthony Gatewood.

Murray came within half an inch of qualifying for state last year in the high jump. He jumped 6-4 last year and started out at 6-2 this season. Leonard long jumped 22-1/2 in the Charleston Indoor Invitational on Saturday to win that event. Fred Strauthers is the leading weight man with help from Kirk Gregory and Craig Ingram. Leonard and Rex Whitehead are the triple jumpers.

"We could use the practice time, but we also need to get out and run," Steptoe said. "We have scheduled meets early at all-weather tracks and that should take us through the end of March."

"We're not as solid in the technical things yet because we have some younger guys, but we've been practicing since Jan. 26. Based on our results last year, I think we have quite a few who have a chance to do very well by the end of the year."

And perhaps steal some thunder from the Trojanites.

1989 Sr. Olympics in St. Louis again

By Dan Caesar

The United States National Senior Olympics, with three new events, will return to St. Louis in 1989, organizers announced at a downtown press conference last week.

The event for people age 55 and older made its debut in St. Louis last year and drew more than 3,000 participants from 44 states. The original plan was to move the biennial event round the country, but officials decided to keep it in St. Louis one more time.

"It became apparent that more organizing work was necessary before the event could be moved to another city," said Ken Marshall, president of the National Senior Olympics. "We believe the Senior Olympics should move around the country. (But) the job of developing specific goals for a community is knowing what to expect."

Therefore, because St. Louis already knows what to expect from the fledgling event, the decision was made to keep it here one more time, he said.

"We can put it on here again and tell them (officials from potential new cities) exactly what we expect from them," Marshall said. "They need to be present to see what goes on. They can then go home having seen exactly what's going on and what they can anticipate would be needed to be done in their city."

Three new sports — badminton, shuffleboard and softball — are to be introduced during the second Senior Olympics, scheduled for June 19-24, 1989, at various sites throughout the St. Louis area. Washington University again will serve as the primary venue for the events, with Shaw Park in Clayton and several other sites expected to be utilized.

"We don't have all that firmed up yet, but we still have plenty of time," Marshall said. "All the sites aren't definite, but the dates are."

The 11 events that were contested last year also will be retained. They are archery, bowling, cycling, golf, horse-shoes, table tennis, tennis, field, volleyball, swimming and track. "The Senior Olympics is a testimony to the fact we are what we want to be," said Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft, who attended the press conference. "Our potential never ceases to grow. We never cheat ourselves by asking too much of ourselves. We only cheat ourselves by asking too little."

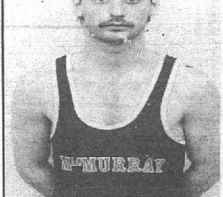

Ashcroft also said that the event has more than an economic impact on the state.

"The U.S. National Senior Olympics has helped remarkably to enhance our efforts to promote physical fitness and health in Missouri," he said. "Missouri had a large representation of participants in 1987, and we expect to have even more in 1989."

Last year, the oldest male participant, Robert Drewery, 83, of Cincinnati finished fourth in the 400-meter run. The oldest female competitors were 86. They were Mary Hillard, of Pontiac, Mich., who finished first in bowling, and Donna Murray, of Palm Springs, Calif., who came in second in golf.

The number of participants in the 1989 Senior Olympics is expected to be significantly more than the 3,000 athletes who competed in 1987, said St. Louis County Councilwoman Ellen Conant, chairman of the St. Louis organizing committee.

"We expect about 1,000 more," she said. "It will bring more media attention and national recognition to St. Louis. We again will create thousands of ambassadors, and everyone will benefit."

Brett Carner

Carner receives wrestling award

Brett Carner of Granite City was recently honored as the Most Valuable Wrestler for the MacMurray College wrestling squad.

Carner is a junior at MacMurray in Jacksonville, Ill. He wrestled at 118 and 126 pounds this year and had a record of 23-15 including a fourth-place finish in the regionals.

The Highlanders did not have a senior on their squad this year while compiling a 5-8 dual meet record. MacMurray is coached by Jim Raabe.

Carner is a pre-vet major and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Carner of Granite City.

Skater

LEAH SCHUMAN of Granite City placed first in the compulsory short program and second in the free skating long program at the 1988 Creve Coeur Figure Skating Competition at Quarry Park on March 4-5. Schuman, 14, is a freshman at Granite City High School and a member of the Brentwood Figure Skating Club.
